Cotton Ginning & Packing.

THE subscriber takes this method of informing the Merchants of Salisbury and Mocksville, and all others living convenient, that he has now in operation, at Hall and Fraley's Mills, on the South-Yadkin river, nine miles from Salisbury, and the same distance from Mocksville, on the main road between the two places, a first rate Cotton Gin; and having built a large house for receiving cotton, is now prepared to take in any quantity for ginning. The subscriber's Gin was made by himself, which he took particular pains in finishing in a superior style, and can recommend it to do as good if not better work than any gin in this section of country: it runs by water, and has been in operation from the first of June last, and can gin at the rate of 5000 pounds seed cotton per day.

All those wishing Cotton Ginned and Packed in the nicest manner for market, are invited to try the subscriber's Gin. This Gin will be constantly kept in complete order, by the subscriber himself.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON.

"In fond remembrance flows the grateful tear,
To think what stars have fallen from our sphere.
To pause, and ponder o'er the illustrious name,
Whose history mediates the nation's fame,
And mourns Washington's wife, and his late,
She weeps her Hamilton's untimely fate!
Rememberless owns her blindness, and to Fame
Comings with sorrow, each illustrious name."

Alexander Hamilton, first secretary of the treasury of the United States, was a native of the island of St. Croix, and was born in 1757. His father was the younger son of an English family, and his mother was an American. At the age of 16 he accompanied his mother to New York, and entered a student of Columbia college, in which he continued about three years. While a member of this institution, the first budding of his intellect gave presages of his future eminence. The contest with Great Britain called forth the first talents on each side; and his juvenile pen asserted the claims of the colonies against very respectable writers. His papers exhibited such evidence of intellect, that they were ascribed to Mr. Jay, and when the truth was discovered, America saw with astonishment a lad of seventeen in the list of her able advocates.

The quarrel having ripened into an open conflict, the first sound of battle awakened the martial spirit of the stripling. He could no longer repose in college shades, while his country was in danger, and her defenders in the field. He accordingly, when in his nineteenth year entered the army with the rank of captain of artillery, and in that capacity distinguished himself on several occasions.

Having by his amiable temper and officer like conduct conciliated the regard and affection of his comrades, it was not long till, by his higher qualities, he attracted the notice of the commander-in-chief. A strong and peculiar trait in the character of Washington, was his intuitive discernment of talent and worth. Never was his faculty exercised by him more happily or with better effect, than in his selection which promoted him to the rank of lieutenant-colonel. This event took place in the year 1777. From that period till near the time of the capture of Lord Cornwallis, Washington and Hamilton were inseparable companions, both in the cabinet and in the field. Never was an aid more perfectly the friend and confidant of a commander, nor a general more ably subserved by an aid. They shared together the dangers and hardships of that trying period with a firmness and fortitude that never were surpassed, and by their bravery and united wisdom, were instrumental, beyond all others, in conducting the arms of their country to victory and glory. Hamilton served as first aid de camp to the commander in chief in the battles of Brandywine, Germantown and Monmouth.

His sound understanding, comprehensive views, application and promptitude, soon gained the entire confidence of his patron. In such a school it was impossible but that his genius should be nourished. By intercourse with Washington, by surveying his plans, observing his consummate prudence, and by a minute inspection of the springs of national operations, the campaign which terminated in the capture of Cornwallis, Col. Hamilton commanded a battalion of light infantry. At the siege of York, in 1781, when the second parallel was opened, two redoubts, which flanked it, and were advanced 300 yards in front of the British works, very much annoyed the men in the trenches. It was resolved to possess them, and to prevent jealousy, the attack of the one was committed to the Americans, and of the other to the French. The detachment of the Americans was commanded by the Marquis de la Fayette, and Col. Hamilton at his own earnest request led the advanced corps, consisting of two battalions. Towards the close of the day on the 14th of October, the troops rushed to the charge without firing a single gun. The works were assaulted with irresistible impetuosity, and carried but with little loss. Eight of the enemy fell in the action; but notwithstanding the irritation lately produced by the infamous slaughter in Fort Griswold, not a man was killed who ceased to resist.

At the conclusion of the war, Col. Hamilton, being now married and having a family depending for its subsistence on his personal exertions, entered, after a brief course of study, on the profession of the law. Still however, notwithstanding the calls of his interest to the contrary, he was unable to detach himself from public affairs.

In 1782, he was a member of congress from the state of New-York. Succeeding session, the proceedings of that body assumed a character novel, striking, and unprecedented in its history. Hamilton took an early and distinguished lead in all the most important measures of the session. He was uniformly a member, and several times chairman of those committees, to which was confided the high and difficult trust of reporting on such subjects as were deemed most vitally interesting to the nation. The reports prepared on these occasions are remarkable for that eloquence, energy, and luminous wisdom which characterize so strongly all the subsequent productions of his pen. He was also mover of several of the most important resolutions to which the session gave rise.

Having acquitted himself of his duty to his country, Col. Hamilton returned to the practice of the law. Nor was it long till he was foremost in professional eminence. But he felt that matters of a public nature had still a claim on him which he ought not to resist.

The violence which was meditated against the property and persons of all who remained in the field during the war, called forth his generous exertions, and by the aid of Gov. Clinton, the faithless and revengeful scheme was defeated. In a few years a more important affair demanded his talents. After witnessing the debility of the confederation, he was fully impressed with the necessity of an efficient general government, and he was appointed, in 1787, a member of the federal convention of New-York. He assisted in forming the constitution of the country. It did not contain sufficient means of strength for its own preservation, and that, in consequence, we should share the faith of many other republics, and pass through anarchy to despotism. He was in favor of a more permanent executive and senate: he wished for a strong government, which would not be shaken by the conflict of different interests through an extensive territory, and which should be adequate to all the forms of national exigency.

By his pen, in the papers signed Publius, and by his voice in the convention of New-York, he contributed much to its adoption. When the government was organized in 1789, Washington placed him at the head of the treasury,—in the new demands, which were now made upon his talents, the resources of his mind did not fail him. In his reports he proposed plans for funding the debt of the union, and for assuming the debts of the respective states: for establishing a bank and mint, and for procuring a revenue. He wished to redeem the reputation of his country by satisfying her creditors, and to combine with the government such a moried interest as might facilitate its operations.

He remained but a short time afterwards in office. As his property had been wasted in the public service, the care of a rising family made it his duty to retire, that by renewed exertions in his profession he might provide for their support. He accordingly resigned his office on the last of January, 1795.

When the provisional army was raised in 1798, Washington qualified his acceptance of it, with the condition that Hamilton should be its associate, and the second in command. This arrangement was accordingly made.

Invested with the rank of inspector-general, Hamilton repaired immediately to this spot and commenced the organization and discipline of his army. These he carried in a short time to perfection, the materials of his command being excellent in quality. His hours of leisure he devoted, with his usual industry, to the study of chemistry, mathematics, and the art of war. In the two latter, his attainments became great. To render him conspicuous among the ablest captains in the world, nothing was now wanting but experience in the field. After the adjustment of our dispute with the French Republic, and the discharges of the army, he returned again to his profession in the city of New-York.

In June, 1804, Col. Burr, vice-president of the United States, addressed a letter to general Hamilton requiring his acknowledgement or denial of the use of any expression derogatory to the honor of the former. This demand was deemed inadmissible, and a duel was the consequence.

After the close of the circuit court, the parties met at Hoboken, on the morning of Wednesday, July the 11th, and Hamilton fell on the same spot where his son a few years before had fallen, in obedience to the principle of honor, and in the same violation of the laws of God and man. He was carried into the city, and being desirous of receiving the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, he immediately sent for the Rev. Dr. Mason. As the principles of his Church prohibited him from administering the ordinance in private, this minister of the gospel informed General Hamilton that the sacrament was an exhibition and pledge of the mercies which the Son of God has purchased, and that the absence of the sign did not exclude from the mercies signified, which were accessible to him by faith in their gracious Author. He replied, "I am aware of that. It is only as a sign that I wanted it." In the conversation which ensued, he disavowed all intention of taking the life of Col. Burr, and declared his abhorrence of the whole transaction. When the sin of which he had been guilty was intimated to him, he assented reliance on the mercy of the almighty, through the merits of the Lord Jesus Christ." The Rev. Bishop Moore was afterwards sent for, and after making suitable inquiries of the penitence of Gen. Hamilton, and receiving his assurance that he would never again, if restored to health, be engaged in a similar transaction gave him the communion. After this his mind was composed, he expired about 2 o'clock on Thursday, July 12, 1804, aged about 46 years.

FROM THE NEW ORLEANS COURIER.

JACKSON.

The glory of a great man becomes in a manner a national domain, of which every citizen has a right to be proud, and the experience of time proves that patriotic enthusiasm acquires every day new force in the contemplation of the brilliant crown of glory that surrounds the foreheads of the heroes, saviours of their country. Thus nations in the spontaneous effusions of their admiration and gratitude towards their benefactors, throw down in disdain the impotent dyes raised by intrigue and envy, to arrest the march of genius, and the object of their love borne by popular enthusiasm, as on a triumphal shield, is suddenly raised to power and to the highest honors of the republic.

Already this salutary crisis is felt to a certain extent in our happy country, a happy presage of the triumph of the mass over a small number of intriguing calumniators. Already does envy hide her head, and the genius of the country proclaiming the name of Jackson, calls that Hero to the capitol to preside over the destinies of a free people.

The State of New-York has imitated the example which had been but shortly before set by the states of Pennsylvania and Tennessee. A meeting of the most respectable men of that state has recommended Jackson to the rest of the Union for the Presidency at the next election. As a patriot I rejoiced to see the dearest interests of my country promised to the trust of one so worthy, as a Louisianian, a feeling of indignation and grief assails me, when I think that the citizens of this state have not only persevered in not taking the initiative, when an opportunity offered of rewarding their benefactor, the hero who saved their honors, their fortunes and their lives, but that they have not feared to assume eternal shame on their heads, by refusing him their constitutional votes in the congress of 1825.

It is far from the theatre of glory, that Jackson now finds his most ardent supporters. It is after having carefully examined and appreciated the conduct, the principles and the life of that great citizen; it is by renewing noble recollections, fertile in glorious comparisons, that the states of New-York and Pennsylvania acquired a conviction that the hero who saved the country in 1815, who in his early youth had devoted to her his voice and his arm, possesses as legitimate rights to the Presidency, as did, in 1789, the great man who conquered our liberties in the war of independence.

But few men have shown, like Jackson, in the difficult circumstances in which fate had placed them, a soul energetic more free of those petty considerations, which influence vulgar spirits. Endowed with rapid perceptions, with an inflexibility of mind, analogous to the vast extent of his views and genius, he may sometimes have trampled under foot a few formalities, only when they entangled his designs upon which depended the safety of his country. Hatred and mediocrity have eagerly seized upon those apparent faults, and have made them the subject of their constant and important declamations. But the most complete success and the approbation of the true patriots have long since absolved him in the name of glory and of his grateful country.

The most virtuous of the heroes of antiquity the conqueror of Leuctra and Mantinea, Epaminondas, incurred the pain of death, because, in the interest of his country he had preserved the supreme power, beyond the term assigned by law; but the sight of his trophies disarmed the severity of his judges. Absolved by his contemporaries, his disobedience to the laws of his country, has ever been considered as a heroic devotion, and a further title to the admiration of men. Thus, and with as much glory the American hero did not fear in a few instances to violate a few legal formalities when the safety of his country was at stake; he did not, for a moment, hesitate to offer as an holocaust, at her sacred altar, the treble sacrifice of his glory, his fortune, and his life. And that heroic abnegation could find among us perfidious detractors; and guilty writers embracing a system of deception and abuse, could oppose cold, pitiful reasonings to the sublime ejaculations of a generous heart, and of the most virtuous enthusiasm!

You, who following that odious system, slander virtues which you cannot even comprehend, say what motives do you assign to the conduct you attribute to Jackson? Is it corruption? You dare not say so, the voice of a whole nation would be raised against you and confound your assertion. Is it ambition? Jackson never kept the eminent offices with which he was invested, longer than was necessary for the interest and the safety of the public weal. Would you say he is a demagogue? Open the history of his glorious life; you will see him constantly as a magistrate, a legislator, a warrior, causing by his own example the institutions of his country to be loved, and using his powers only to preserve peace and harmony among his fellow-citizens. It is therefore gratuitously, without foundation, without proofs, that cruel envy and calumny delighted in pouring their venom upon all the acts of the public and private life of Jackson. Like Washington and Jefferson, he has seen and still sees the storms of party jealousy, of overrated pretensions, of disappointed hopes, of unveiled intrigue, burst upon him; he sees their barking pack surrounding him with its threatening clamour and daily insulting his great name: but calm and presenting the eternity of his glory, he looks with pitiful disdain on their impotent and ridiculous efforts, and he offers to his country the homage of a fresh devotion, in a silent respect for liberty, even its greatest aberrations.

D. A. A.

From the Notes of a Traveller in Colombia, 1826.
GENERAL PAEZ.

This extraordinary man is a Llanero or native of the elevated plains of Varinas in Venezuela. He was the owner of herds of half wild cattle, which he attended himself—in fact an illiterate herdsman. Naturally of a bold impetuous temper, and possessed of strength and activity of body, altogether surprising in a frame rather under the common size, he early distinguished himself in those feats of hardihood and dexterity, rendered more frequent by being almost continually on horseback, which in a rude society, confer a title to superiority. Enjoying these personal advantages, united to a quick penetrating mind, and much native sagacity, he had elevated himself, about the time of the revolution to a sort of chieftainship possessing great influence over the roving bands of half savage herdsmen, in his immediate vicinity. His restless ambition prompted him to collect a band of his most daring associates and placing himself at their head, he commenced a partisan predatory warfare on his own account. Being an American, his natural propensities inclined him to the Patriot cause; but when in want of provisions or necessities for his men, or money for himself to enable him to indulge in that strongest of all the passions in an uncultivated mind—gaming—the cause of his country was frequently lost sight of, and the firm patriot then received the treatment most usually inflicted upon the devoted royalist. Bolivar, attentive to the growing influence of the lawless chief, determined at once to fix his principles, and enlist his good qualities for the benefit of their common country by appointing him to the regular army. This step had the desired effect. The cause of the country was strengthened by a chief of the most heroic intrepidity; possessing a genius for war, which dispensed with the rules of art; having under his command, a body of dauntless cavalry, whose charge when led by their favourite chief was irresistible. These men, accustomed to the horse from early infancy, resemble in appearance and equipment, the Russian Cossacks, and like them do not owe the effect of their onset to the shock of a mass, but charge separately, or two or three together, depending upon individual address and prowess, upon the dexterous management of the horse, the lance, and the example of their leader.

Paez has been engaged in many battles and numerous minor conflicts, but he more especially owes his distinction to his conduct at the battle of Carabobo. The contending armies were each about 5000 men, the field an extensive plain traversed by a road, and on one side, at some distance from the road, by a concealed ravine. The contending parties although numerically equal, were not so in force: the Spaniards were better disciplined, and had a beautiful battery of artillery in position upon the road, commanding the whole plain, the Colombians being without this arm. Bolivar, knowing how much depended upon the event of the day, disposed his force in two divisions, giving the right to Montilla, the senior, the left to Paez, with orders to attack with his two battalions and about 1200 cavalry by the ravine. The President knew it was a desperate game, and had chosen his agent accordingly. Paez, delighted at the distinction conferred upon him by the selection, joyfully led on his men: at first concealed by the indicated ravine, but issuing soon upon the general level of the plain, the Spanish commander, La Torre, saw the quarter of attack, and endeavoured by a corresponding change in the position of his troops and battery to oppose it. But Paez, brandishing his lance, fell upon them with such rapidity and resolution, that although he lost half his division, he completely routed the whole Spanish army, and captured their artillery. The carnage of the flying was terrible, and if it had not been for the fatigue of the horses, broken down by long marches, and the intrepidity of Gen. Morales, the second in command, who hastily formed a hollow square, and retired in that order, not a man would have escaped.

About the close of the action, Paez gave an instance of an infirmity, which seizes him when violently excited. It is said to resemble an epileptic fit. If force be not used to prevent him, which was obliged to be used at Carabobo, his propensity is to charge single-handed against whole battalions of the enemy.

The results of this famous battle were the occupation of Valencia the next day, and of Caracas three days after. Paez was made a Captain General in the field, by Bolivar, and entrusted with the chief command. This promotion was shortly after sanctioned by a resolution of Congress, in which the General is characterized as the bizarro General Paez.

The Llanero has now, by the assistance of the English officers of his staff, made some progress in the elements of education. Such is his quickness of apprehension, that he learns without difficulty what in others would require years of application. It is to be regretted that the models before his eyes, and upon which he has formed himself, were not more worthy of imitation. He has learnt every thing presented to him; and if he possesses the easy carriage and polite manners of polished society, he has likewise acquired its vices. He is not habitually intemperate, but it is frequently committed by the conviviality of his disposition. He carries his passion for gaming to such an extent, as always to keep himself poor, although he possesses some of the richest confiscated estates in the country. This propensity prompts him, likewise, to borrow with little scrupulousness from whomsoever will lend, without troubling himself about repayment.

Formerly, when the minds of the contending parties were heated by mutual barbarities, the character of the General had been stained with acts of cruelty; not merely against the enemy, who at one period were put to death when taken, as a matter of course, but towards his own troops. Like other men of great genius and violent passions, he is a warm friend and a deadly foe. Many anecdotes are related of the General's foolhardy intrepidity, and feats of address and activity, some merely undertaken by way of bravado, while others had a more laudable object. Among the first, are his feats in leaping and swimming horses; his attacks of furious bulls; and particularly his singular amusement of encountering the caiman, or alligator, in his own element. An instance of a more praiseworthy exertion of courage, was in the capture by him and his officers, of a Spanish armed schooner lying at anchor in the Orinoco. This was effected by swimming from the shore, each of the party holding his sword in his mouth.

The General is now (1823) about 35 years old. Besides his military rank, he is a Senator of the Republic. Although clothed with these high and civil military employments, he does not hesitate to engage in the most boisterous pranks. On the expiration of the armistice of Santa Ana, to show his joy at the event, he set fire to the soldiers' barracks. During another interval of inactivity, he amused himself by taking his officers to the houses of the most wealthy inhabitants of Angostura, about the time of dinner, as if in compliance with an invitation. Those who knew the General, put on the best face, and produced every thing the house afforded, or that could be procured on so unceremonious a notice. Others who were more sparing of their wine and provisions or attempted to make excuses, were sure to have their houses sacked, for the pretended indignity of inviting gentlemen to dinner without suitable preparations. After this round of dissipation had lasted a fortnight, and broken down the health of those engaged, the General ordered his officers to meet at a designated house, and detached a guard, as if to attend a military funeral. The best drinker was seized and placed on a bier, with empty bottles, demijohns, &c. The guard with reversed arms, followed by the officers, each carrying an empty bottle, proceeded to the place of interment, every citizen they met being obliged to assist at the ceremony, which was conducted with all the formalities practised on such occasions. A funeral sermon was preached, setting forth the convivial accomplishments of the defunct. On the third day, becoming weary of the absence of amusement, the General announced that a resurrection was about to take place. This was accompanied by the rites usually observed in Catholic countries on East Sunday. The bottles were all filled, nothing but rejoicing was heard, and the revived toper, placed in honour at the head of the table, was appointed master of the revels. The above trait proves, if it proves nothing else, that in a country where such a scene could be acted, the people cannot be charged with an over attachment to the established religion.

IBRAHIM PACHA.

The following is given in an English paper as an authentic sketch of Ibrahim Pacha, the conqueror of Misolonghi: "The stature of Ibrahim is somewhat below mediocrity—his movements approach a little to the grotesque—his deportment announces nothing grave or distinguished. At first sight there appears about him a character of mildness and sagacity which surprises you. Conceive to yourself a small face and little grey eyes, all vivacity, and even cheerfulness; a mouth forever smiling, and features always open and animated. Notwithstanding premature wrinkles which furrow his temples, and a hollowness about the exterior angle of his eyes, his appearance, still youthful, forms a striking contrast to his age—now thirty-seven. There is nothing about him announcing superior or even remarkable qualities. He is said to have been cruel to ferocity from his very earliest infancy, and his life proves it; but I would defy Lavatar to distinguish in his countenance that feature by which it shall be indicated. I have seen him in a moment of irritation, and I can affirm that he has not the look of an homicide. His dress is simple, and he is only to be distinguished by the suit of officers who accompany him. In the camp his life is regular and abstemious; he smokes and drinks coffee forever. His tent is exceedingly simple, and in no way distinguished from that of other chiefs. Before we proceed to speak of his character, it is important to observe, that the son of Mahomet is affected by an intermittent disease of the brain, whose effects manifest themselves in convulsive motions and loud cries. It is asserted, and with probability, that after an attack he preserves for some time an invincible taciturnity, and that then he is no longer the same man; his errors, they say, are the effects of an imagination he cannot restrain.—Ibrahim is as illiterate as his father. He has, besides, been continually led away from all serious application by a fondness of women which he cannot restrain, and to which the malady which torments him is attributed. He does not want for penetration, and will always hold his authority over those about him, because he despises them, and is distrustful."

FROM ALGIERS.

Extract of a letter to the Editor of the National Journal, from a friend, dated Algiers, August 25, 1826.

A few hours only are left me to write to you and my friends. The vessel which affords us this occasion for Marseilles, belongs to Curacao, owned by Captain Cashington, formerly of Boston, and is loaded with Campeachy wood, by merchants of that city. She was bound from Campeachy to Marseilles, and within sixty miles of the city was visited by the Algerine squadron, cruising against Spanish commerce, and being found without a Mediterranean pass, was brought in here. Had it not been for the undaunted spirit and inflexible character of Mr. Shaler, this vessel would have been confiscated. The cargo was actually confiscated by the Minister of Marine, M. de Hargree, but was subsequently liberated by the Bashaw, on certain conditions. Our consul declared to the Minister that the confiscation would be the cause of war. The Minister, under evident restraint, and even fear, exclaimed, "kuf shey American?" Who are the Americans?—are they the Heavens?" that we are eternally opposed by them? This discussion with the Bashaw proved him to be a man of fine judgment, and a Prince of elevated and magnanimous sentiments. He said that he well knew the stipulations of the treaty between the Regency and the United States, for he was not, as in former days, unable to read, and would scrupulously observe them. If the most precious cargo of the Indies, of pearls, and ingots of gold, were brought into this port, and proved to be American property, they should be held sacred, and restored. I was charmed with the urbanity and dignified manners of this Barbarous chief.

These people are gradually abandoning their piratical pretensions. For instance, they have lately granted the coral fishery of this coast, from Bona to Oran, to the Neapolitan Government, on condition of receiving one-half. This will employ numerous fishermen, and create a market. It is but a small step towards the pursuits of civilized society, but it is still something.

The Aga of the Janissaries has been in the interior for two months past, and under pretence of compelling the Arabs to pay a tribute, which they say they cannot pay, he has sabred about 3000 of their heads. This is like imprisonment for debt. He has taken from them all their cattle and property of every species, even their women, as is reported. He has about 5000 troops.

West India papers, containing the late order in council closing their ports against the shipping of the United States, lay the whole blame of the proceeding upon the bad policy of the American government, and deprecate the act as an alarming blow to the commercial interests of the colonies.

Col. Pluck.—We learn from Democratic Press, that the redoubtable Colonel John Pluck has been sentenced by a Court Martial to be cashiered, and declared incapable of holding a commission in the militia of Pennsylvania for seven years!!! The sentence has been approved, and a new election ordered to supply the vacancy thus caused in "the bloody Eighty-Fourth."

Vera Cruz papers to the 16th ult. have been received at Philadelphia. A paper of the 18th ult. contains a notice from the American Consulate, accompanied with an address from Mr. Poinsett, American Minister to Mexico, to the citizens of the United States resident in Mexico, advising them of the decease of Mr. Adams and Mr. Jefferson, and respectfully inviting them to join the Legation in wearing crape on the left arm for thirty days, in testimony of their respect and veneration for their memory.

The papers contain recruiting orders from Commodore Porter, with the device, God and Liberty.

The climate and conveniences of Tacubaya where the ci-devant Congress of Panama will meet, are much extolled in the Mexican papers.

There is to be a general public rejoicing on the day of the installation of "the great American Diet" at Tacubaya.

The New-York Mercantile Advertiser contains the following extract of a letter from a respectable gentleman, dated Carthage, Sept. 25, 1826.

We had yesterday a messenger from Bolivar. He came from Quito by the way of Panama, and proceeded in a man of war for Porto Cabello and La Guayra. The object of his mission is to call a meeting of the people in every town, and if a majority wish a convention called before 1830, to take into consideration a change of government; the President intends to yield to their wishes.

Bolivar has had a good deal of trouble at Quito. He has been compelled to shoot about one hundred men and to hang a good many. They muttered and said "Long live Ferdinand." &c. Bolivar has pledged himself to be in Bogota on the 12th of October.

France.—It may be said, that properly speaking, there are neither parties nor political opinions in the mass of the population of France. Hatred and antipathies show themselves, but nothing more. Almost every one pursues his own business and leaves the government to do as it pleases. Among the small number of young men who devote themselves to the study of politics, the greater part incline to the system of Government of the United States; but it would be difficult to make this opinion popular, as there is no means of propagating it with safety.

State of Ireland.—Look at the nations of Europe, and show me one, despotic or free, of which so large a portion is so barbarous and wretched as the Irish. The country is more fertile than Britain; the inhabitants are healthy, strong, courageous, faithful, patriotic, and quick of apprehension. No quality is wanting which constitutes the respectability of a State, or the happiness of individuals; yet from centuries of misrule, they are in a condition more hopeless than any other nation or tribe upon the globe, civilized or savage.

Treasures.—A man living near Detroit following some instructions found among the papers of his deceased father, has commenced a search for treasure in the rear of that city, and has already succeeded in finding between four and five thousand dollars. This must have been hidden during the old French war with the Indians, when the residents were in continual apprehension of attack.

Caution to Farmers.—The Marietta, Pa. Pioneer of Oct. 18th, says, we are informed, that several very fine horses have died in this neighborhood, within a few days, in consequence of eating new corn.

The Baltimore Patriot of the 14th inst. gives an account of a splendid entertainment given on board the fine frigate built ship of the largest class, recently launched, called the Baltimore. Between two and three hundred ladies and gentlemen were conveyed in a steam boat to the frigate, which rode at anchor in the Patapsco river, below Fort M'Henry.

"As the sun disappeared below the western horizon, the moon shone in mild splendour—the civic arch of national colours—the festoons of curtains—the tasteful manner, in which the frigate was illuminated—the music floating on the waters, and dying on the ear in soft and mellow numbers—the Brazilian and U. S. officers in complete uniform, joined with the bright array of fashion, youth and beauty—gave to the entertainment an air of enchantment, which seemed to render real the brightest visions of romance; indeed,

"The scene was more beautiful, far to my eye,
"Than if day in his pride had array'd it;
"The land breeze blew mild, and the azure deck'd sky
"Looked pure as the spirit that made it."

EPICURIAN.

When Harry was old, to Maria he said,
"My dear, if you please, we will marry."
Maria replied, with a toss of the head,
"I never will wed thee, Old Harry!"
He waited till all her gay suitors were gone,
Then cried, "a fine dance they have led you;
The hand that I proffered, you treated with scorn,
And now, the—Old Harry—wed you!"

NOVEMBER 7, 1826.

"O. O." cannot appear till next week,—the department of our paper which is usually appropriated to such productions, having been pre-occupied when it was received.

The Elizabeth City (North-Carolina) Star, of the 21st ult. says that, owing to the indisposition of Judge Paxson, no court was held for Perquimans county. It was, however, said that he would be sufficiently recovered to hold court in the next county in course,—Pasquotank.

The Legislature of Tennessee convened in Nashville, on Monday, the 16th ult. In the House of Representatives, Thomas J. Campbell, Esq. was elected principal clerk, in place of John P. Erwin, Esq. resigned. This being a called session, the officers (with the exception of vacancies) are the same as at last session. On the 17th, Gov. Carroll sent his message to both branches of the Legislature. We have neither space nor time to notice the topics of the message; but may do so hereafter.

FOR THE WESTERN CAROLINIANS. TO THE PUBLIC.

The late awful and destructive visitation, in the upper part of this and the adjacent county of Davidson, is strongly calculated to call forth the sympathies of a generous community in behalf of the afflicted sufferers. Never has the like been heard of in our day. Neither war, famine, nor any other evil, within the era of our history, has ever passed over our fair country, or any part of it, with such a heavy and desolating stride. 'Tis true, that the havoc was limited in its extent; but where it did pass, nothing could be more completely ruinous. Families partly killed, and the survivors left houseless, naked, and breadless.

But mere condolence in such a conjuncture, is unprofitable to the sufferers, and unbecoming a spirited public. It is therefore proposed, that some substantial relief shall be extended to the sufferers; for that purpose, a subscription will forthwith be opened, at Col. Yarbrough's and Mr. Slaughter's Hotels, in the town of Salisbury; another at Mocksville, at Mr. Chaffin's store; and one at Mr. Dusenbury's, at Lexington. It is also expected, that a subscription will be opened in the Town of Salem, and at some place in the neighbourhood of the families that have suffered.

All, therefore, who are inclined to do more than let their charity evaporate in words, have an opportunity of doing so, by calling at some one of the above named places, and either leaving the Money, or their obligation, for some amount. This appeal comes the more forcibly in behalf of one whose benevolence and charity is as well known in this part of the State, as the name of Samuel Jones itself. If such a calamity had befallen the least deserving individual in one of our larger cities, there is but little doubt that the loss, to the last cent, would have been made up by private liberality. And why should we, in the country, be behind them in good deeds? Especially when we recollect, that such demands on us are seldom made; and probably such another will never again be made, on most of the present generation.

YOUNG MEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Agreeably to previous notice, given in the Western Carolinian, a meeting took place at Third Creek Church, Rowan county, on the 28th of Oct. 1826, for the purpose of forming a Society, to aid in the important work of spreading the Gospel. After an appropriate address, a President and Secretary were appointed, pro tem; and the following preamble and constitution were read and adopted:

The young men within the bounds of the Concord Presbytery, viewing with affectionate regard their fellow-travellers to the grave, and to the high tribunal of Heaven, and knowing the deplorably destitute situation of many places within the bounds of the Presbytery, do agree to unite themselves in brotherly affection, as a society, to aid them in obtaining spiritual supplies of the means of grace; and do therefore agree to be governed by the following Constitution:

Article 1st. This society shall be known by the name of the Young Men's Missionary Society within the bounds of the Concord Presbytery.

2d. The sole object of this society shall be, to furnish faithful Missionaries to weak and destitute churches; and, through their instrumentality, to build up churches where there are none.

3d. The officers of this society shall be, a President, two Vice Presidents, Secretary, and Treasurer; who, with five other members, annually chosen by ballot, shall constitute a Board of Directors, five of whom shall be a quorum to transact the business of the society.

4th. The board of directors shall meet quarterly, or oftener if necessary; fill its own vacancies; solicit donations; procure subscribers; appoint agents and Missionaries; with the advice of some of the members of the Concord Presbytery, prescribe the field of their labours; appropriate the funds; and report annually to the society.

5th. It shall be the duty of the President to preside and keep order at all meetings of the board and society; and in case of his absence, the first Vice President on the list present; and in case of the absence of all the Presidents, the presiding officer shall be elected pro tem. The Secretary shall keep a fair record of all the proceedings of the board and society, and conduct all necessary correspondence. The Treasurer shall receive and hold all the funds of the society, subject to the order of the board; and report annually, or oftener if required.

6th. Any person who shall pay fifty cents on subscribing, and the same annually, shall be a member of this society. Any person paying ten dollars at one time, shall be a member for life; and any person paying twenty five dollars at one time, shall be a director for life.

7th. The society shall hold its annual meetings on the Saturday preceding the fourth Sabbath in October.

8th. Extra meetings of the Society may be called by the President at the request of five members of the board of directors.

9th. The society shall elect, at each annual meeting, a person to deliver an appropriate address before the society, at its succeeding anniversary, with an alternate.

10th. This constitution shall not be amended, except at an annual meeting, and by a vote of two-thirds of the members present.

Officers were chosen as follows: Rufus H. Kilpatrick, Pres.; Alburus L. Watts, 1st. Vice Pres.; Joseph W. Hall, 2d Vice Pres.; Silas M. Andrews, Secretary; Robert Hill, Treasurer; and Hall McCorkle, Treas. pro tem; Rufus D. Johnston, Hall McCorkle, John Steele, James Cowan, J. F. McCorkle, Directors.

Rufus H. Kilpatrick was elected to deliver the first annual address; and Silas M. Andrews, the alternate.

Resolved, that the constitution and proceedings of the present meeting, be published in the Western Carolinian, and in the North Carolina Telegraph.

The first anniversary meeting of the Young Men's Missionary Society, shall be held at Back Creek Church, Rowan county, agreeably to the time specified in the constitution.

Society adjourned.

The following mathematical proposition was handed to us early last summer, by an acquaintance; and has been lying among some of our files of manuscripts ever since: it was by chance we came across it the other day.

In a treaty made with a nation of Indians, it was stipulated that they should cede to the whites a tract of land, to begin at a given place, and run 80 miles, thence in a south-easterly direction, to form an isosceles triangle, to contain 10 square miles for every mile contained in the boundary round it.

AMERICAN SURVEYOR.

A new corps of Infantry has been formed in the city of Charleston, designated the "Jackson Guard"—Charles Parker, captain.

In Charleston on the 13th ult. a young lad, 12 years old, son of Capt. John Davis, was thrown from a wild, antic horse, which he was riding; and his foot getting entangled in the stirrup, he was dragged and kicked to death by the animal, in a most awful manner. Another warning, not to suffer young lads to mount horses which are easily frightened.

"The Kennebunk (Maine) Gazette announces the appearance of ripe strawberries, of the second growth, in that place. The Boston Courier states that raspberries of a second growth have been sold in the Boston Market for some weeks past."

[Our northern friends are certainly more peculiarly favored this, than in ordinary seasons, —or else we have a very erroneous notion of the frigidity of their climate. We had always fancied to ourselves, that so far north as Maine, (where a second crop of that delicious fruit the Strawberry, is said to have been gathered this season) the climate was so ungenial as scarcely to bring the first crop to maturity. But it seems we have either mistaken the climate of that section of country, or that this season has, there, been an exception to all others. In this part of North-Carolina, as we have before mentioned, fruit, of almost every description, failed this season, in a first crop; but had it not been for the severe drought during the summer, there might have been a second crop, as the fall has been remarkably warm, and favorable to the growth of vegetation; but the season was so far advanced before we had rain enough to afford moisture sufficient to cause even weeds to vegetate, that no fruit could be produced before the frosts would have cut it off. Last week, we saw blossoms on a plum tree, not far from this town; and within a few days, have seen strawberry vines in blossom. We have, as yet, had but few frosts; and those quite light. The weather now resembles more the month of April, than of November.]

THE "NATURAL WALLS."

The following is a compend of the observations of Professor Olmsted, on what is called, and, hitherto, commonly believed to be, the "Artificial Walls" in this county. There has been much doubt and speculation on these walls; but we presume the opinion of the Professor will carry sufficient weight with it, to remove all doubt or skepticism.

"Among the contents of the granite rocks of the West, none has inspired so general an interest as the Natural Wall of Rowan. Fissures in the granite rocks, from a few inches to a foot or two in breadth, are filled with a blackish kind of stones of very regular figure, covered with iron rust, arranged uniformly across the opening, exactly fitted to one another.

and apparently in the matter. These circumstances make the structure look so much like a work of art, that those who first observed it, unacquainted as they were with geological phenomena, did not hesitate to represent it as an artificial fabric; and hence this will have long been ranked among the great curiosities of the world, on the supposition that it was the work of some ancient people, for purposes unknown. It however belongs to a class of geological phenomena, by no means uncommon, being nothing more than one of the structures found in various countries denominated Basaltic Dykes. It is a well known property of Basalt to split easily, and in such a manner as to form columns with smooth faces, and to decompose into powder, resembling iron rust, whenever water lodges in the crevices. The regular shape of the prismatic columns which compose the dykes, is in like manner, owing to the original mass having split or cracked by a strain, (the result of contraction) acting uniformly on every part. An illustration of this principle may be seen in a stiff clay soil, baked by the sun. Were there need of any further reasons for discarding the opinion that these dykes are artificial structures, it might be added, that Basaltic formations, presenting far greater regularity than those of Rowan, and on a scale far more magnificent, are found in various parts of the world. Witness the extraordinary caverns in the Western Islands of Scotland, the Giant's Causeway on the Northern Coast of Ireland, &c. It has been asserted by Mineralogists, that no genuine basalt had been discovered in this country; but the Professor is of opinion that these dykes present an unequivocal example of that substance.

New-York.—The North-Carolina Journal, of the 25th ult. in noticing the nominations for Governor in the state of New-York, says: "The Utica Convention was composed principally of Federal gentlemen: the Herkimer Convention was composed of Buck-Tails." If Mr. Cameron speaks advisedly on the subject, we shall feel under obligations to him if he will give us his authority. In 1812, the state of New-York was most decidedly Republican; and we can hardly believe, that, in the fourteen years which has now intervened, the whole race of her Republicans has become extinct,—as a stranger to the state would naturally infer from the article in the Journal, which makes out one convention to be Federalists, and the other Bucktails, all the counties in the state, with the exception of two or three, being represented in one or the other of the Conventions. The Journal must have received its bias in this matter, either from Noah, or some other incorrigible "Bucktail" aristocrat; for we know, either personally or by reputation, a considerable majority of the members of the Utica Convention to have been the staunchest Republicans and purest patriots during the proscription times of 1812-13. Of what odds and ends, shreds and patches, the "Bucktail" party is composed, we cannot very easily determine; although we recognize, in some of its members, gentlemen who, in 1812, were found acting with the Republican party. But such men as John Sudan, George Tibbitts, &c. &c. &c. we cannot be brought to look upon as very consistent Republicans.

AGRICULTURAL SHOW.
The exhibition of live stock, and of domestic horse manufactures, under the patronage of the Agricultural Society, was held in this place, on Thursday last. The show of live stock was not as large as on a former occasion; though the animals exhibited were very fine. The display of horse manufactures was much better than that of live stock. There were some very superior articles of female industry, as will be seen by the reports of the committees. Indeed, on this occasion, the females displayed a greater zeal in the cause, than the men; and we believe it is generally the case on all similar occasions. After candle-light, by previous appointment, Maj. John Board delivered an excellent address to the members of the society, convened in the Court-House, and to many of the gentlemen and ladies of the town, who honored the occasion with their presence. The subject of the address, of course, was agricultural.
The society received an essay from Doct. Robert Moore, one of the members, on the Culture of Cotton; which was examined by a committee, highly approved, and ordered to be published.
The business of the Show was concluded by a distribution of such of the premiums as were in readiness.

* The address shall be published, as soon as we can obtain a copy.—Editor. (C) We were in expectation of being furnished with the reports of the committees who awarded the premiums; but have been disappointed.

LITERARY PRIZES.
The proprietor of the Philadelphia Album intends distributing the following literary prizes. The merit of the pieces to be decided by a committee of literary gentlemen of Philadelphia, viz:
For the best original Tale, fifty dollars in cash, or a Gold Medal of the same value.
For the second best original Tale, thirty dollars in cash, or a Gold Medal of the same value.
For the best original Essay, fifty dollars in cash, or a Gold Medal of the same value.
For the second best original Essay, twenty dollars in cash, or a Gold Medal of the same value.
For the best original Poem, not exceeding one hundred lines, thirty dollars in cash, or a Gold Medal of the same value.
For the second best original Poem, not exceeding one hundred lines, twenty dollars in cash, or a Gold Medal of the same value.
To be forwarded, free of expense, to Thomas C. Clarke, proprietor of "The Ladies Weekly

Gazette, Philadelphia, as follows:—The "Tales" on or before the first day of December next. The Essays on or before the twentieth day of January next—and the Poems on or before the twenty-second day of Feb. next, each article to be accompanied with a sealed note, containing the writer's name and address, which will in no case be opened, unless a premium be awarded to the writer thereof.

FAYETTEVILLE, OCT. 23.
Our town has been healthy during the whole season, and it is hoped and believed that the cool weather, which we now enjoy, will effectually dispel the few traces of autumnal chills and fevers, which may linger amongst us. The number of deaths have been very few, compared with our population, and these have been confined, chiefly, to old and consumptive people.
Our River is now in fine boating order, our Merchants are receiving and opening an unusual supply of Dry-Goods and Groceries, which, they say, they can afford to sell at very low prices—and we hope to see our friends from the country coming in with their produce and driving on a brisk and profitable trade.

We are requested to state, that $50 counterfeit Bills, purporting to be the issue of the Bank of Cape Fear, are in circulation. From certain circumstances, we are led to apprehend, that they have originated in the neighborhood of Columbia, S. C. Persons unskilled in Bank Paper should be cautious in receiving Bills of the above denomination.
Wilmington Recorder.

It is stated in the Norfolk Beacon, that the Grand Jury of Gates county, in this State, at the last term of the Superior Court, presented the White Oak Spring Canal Company, for not having performed their contract with the State; and that it was understood that the Court had granted a writ of quo warranto.

On Wednesday evening the British Sloop of War Harlequin, arrived at New York from Carthage, with $385,000 in doubloons, in part payment for the Frigate La Plata, built by Mr. Eckford.

It is stated in the Quebec papers that some chests of treasure, which were lost in a frigate, sixty-seven years ago, in the St. Lawrence, about nine miles above that place, have been found. It is rumored that the value of this property is estimated at one million of dollars.

The British frigate Sybil has lost 100 men killed and wounded, in an attack upon some Greek pirates, and was obliged to withdraw from the contest, and surrender a prize and some prisoners she had taken.

Two Deer were found dead a few days since, in St. Thomas' Parish, with their horns so firmly locked together, as to render it impossible to separate them, now that their heads have been severed from their bodies, without breaking the horns.

A Sad Mistake.—A rattlesnake was about a fortnight since discovered in the canal, in Warwasink, by an emigrant from the land of St. Patrick; who supposing it to be an eel, without any ceremony grappled it, exclaiming, "An ale! an ale, by the powers!" Some bystanders soon undeceived him, when it was found that he had been bitten three times by the poisonous reptile. By a timely application, however, the poison was extracted.

An Ostrich upwards of 9 feet high, weighing more than 200 pounds, bearing both the white and blue feathers, has been added to the royal menagerie in London.

An apparatus has been invented at London, which is calculated to reduce fluids from the state of steam, or the highest degree of boiling heat, to the temperature of spring water. The process may be performed with any required rapidity; or, in other words, any number of gallons may be cooled or heated, per minute, by the employment of equal quantities of cooling or heating fluid. The discovery is considered peculiarly important to steam machinery, to brewing, distilling, sugar-baking, and to various other arts.

On the 15th July, two wealthy Jews were executed at Constantinople. One of them was a broker to the Janissaries; the other was one of the richest bankers in the empire. His property, to the amount of forty million of piastres, was confiscated.

The last Jackson (Ten.) Gazette states, that since the resumption of specie payments by the Tennessee Banks, North Carolina money is at a discount of 5 per cent, at Nashville; and the United States notes bear a premium of 3 per cent.

Letters from Florida, received in New York, state that young Murat and Col. Macomb, of Tallahassee, had recently fought a duel in that territory; and that the former was wounded, but not severely.

As in the gloomiest years, some days
Of sunshine nature bless;
So life, however sad, displays
Its gleams of happiness.
But as across the clearest skies
Some flitting vapours stray;
So still some petty cares arise
To dim our brightest day.

DIED.
At Charlotte, on the 12th instant, Mr. Duncan Campbell, aged 35 years. And, on the 13th, John Foundling, the little innocent who was inhumanly left in a miserable hotel near this place last winter, an account of which was published in our paper of January 3. It is satisfactorily ascertained, that the mother of this child, and its uncle, on whom rests the guilt of abandoning it in a desolate and unfeeling, to the cold charity of strangers, are residents of the state of Alabama—their place of abode is known, and all the circumstances connected with the birth of the child, and its subsequent abandonment; and at the proper time, we trust their names will be exposed to the execration of the community.

In Ireddell county, on the 22d ult. at an advanced age, Mrs. Harris, relict of the late Maj. Thomas Harris. Also, in the same neighborhood, (Centre Congregation) on the 23d ult. Mr. Joseph Templeton, aged 77 years. This worthy old gentleman was a staunch Whig in the Revolution, and fought for the Independence of his country.
In Mecklenburg county, at the house of Rankin Alexander, Esq. on the 23d ult. after a short and severe illness, Mrs. Margaret M. Wynans, aged 17, wife of Mr. William Wynans, and daughter of Alexander Torrence, Esq. of Ireddell county. The death of this young and amiable woman, is calculated to excite the sympathy and commiseration of all who were acquainted with the circumstances attending it. She had been married but about six weeks previous to her death; the music of the nuptial festival had scarcely ceased to reverberate in her ears, before the death-watch broke upon them;—she was summoned from the bridal hall, to the bed of death.

By Saturday's Mail.
In the trials which have lately taken place in New-York, of Messrs. Eckford, Barker, and others, our readers have been informed that Jacob Barker conducted his own defence. It appears that he gave too much latitude to his tongue in some of his harangues to the Court; for which Judge Edwards reprimanded him, and fined him one hundred dollars; which Friend Jacob paid down, on the spot, in Doubloons;—observing, that he hoped such inviting change would induce the officers of court to drink his health.

The Baltimore Patriot says, that by late information from the elections in Ohio, it is pretty well ascertained that of the members to the 20th Congress, twelve will be in favor of the administration, and two against it.

The trial which has occupied the attention of a Court of Oyer and Terminer, in New-York for the last month, has passed before the Jury. Later papers state, that the Jury having given it as their opinion, that it would be impossible for them to agree were they to remain together a month, the Court ordered them to be discharged. Since their dismissal, it is ascertained, that they were divided in the following manner—seven to five for convicting all the defendants, and eight to four for convicting all but Henry Eckford. This inability on the part of the Jury to agree as to the innocence of any of the party implicated, seems to evidence a stronger color of guilt, on the part of the defendants, than we were before willing to admit. Of a truth may it be said, "Something is rotten in the State of Denmark."

Cotton.—A letter, dated the 19th ult. from New-York, says:
"The Cotton market is about half a cent better than last week; 11 1-2 cents is obtained for the best of the old crop, but purchasers are unwilling to go higher."

From Buenos Ayres.—By an arrival at Portsmouth, (N. H.) late advices from Buenos Ayres have been received.

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 25.
About a month since, Admiral Brown in the Buenos Ayrian service, had a severe engagement with the Brazilian Squadron; the Brazilians being far superior in numbers, were advancing to attack Brown—but he went among them in the night, and a severe action took place in the outer roads of Buenos Ayres, and a second the next morning. It is said Brown was not well supported by his own vessels. His own ship, "The 25th May," was completely cut up, and later accounts from Buenos Ayres speak of her as unfit for repair. The Brazilian squadron also suffered much, one brig the Caboclo, Capt. Grenfel, put into Monte Video to repair, and her Captain was severely wounded and his arm afterwards amputated at the shoulder joint. Several others of the Brazilian squadron also put back to repair. The last accounts from Buenos Ayres speak of the Brazilian blockading squadron as being in the outer Roads of Buenos Ayres, and that Admiral Brown with a body of Seamen had gone from Buenos Ayres to Bahia Blanca to join the Chilean squadron of about four frigates expected there from Valparaiso to assist the Buenos Ayrians.

It is said the Buenos Ayrians are about invading Rio Grande, a Brazilian province, and Gen. Le Core in the Brazilian service was about leaving Mont Video to take command of the Emperor's troops stationed at St. Anna, said to consist of 3000 cavalry and 5000 infantry.

The Island of Chiloe has declared its independence of the Chilean Government. This was brought about by Gen. O'Higgins, ex-director of Chili. Admiral Blanes has been elected president of Chili. Lima is tranquil.
Cordova has recalled her deputies from Congress, and had marched troops against Catamarca.

The Paper Currency of Buenos Ayres was much depreciated, say fifty per cent. Gold ounces or Doubloons being worth 26 paper dollars.

The above is given as the report of the day at Monte Video—no newspaper is printed there.

BALTIMORE, OCT. 27.
From Havre.—From our correspondents of the New York Mercantile Advertiser, we learn that the brig Delta, at Boston, sailed from Havre Sept. 19th. A letter of the 18th, says—"Cotton continues steady in price, but the sales are limited." Paris papers are of the 16th. It was reported, that the Knights of Malta were negotiating with Spain for the cession of Minorca; and that the Island of Milo has been ceded to the Christian Powers.

From Gibraltar.—The schnr. Hyphen, which arrived at New York on Tuesday evening, left Gibraltar Bay on the 27th ult. but had no communication with the town subsequent to the 24th. The last accounts from Greece, stated that Lord Cochrane had arrived in the Archipelago, and that affairs in that quarter were more favorable than previous accounts represented. The Mercantile Advertiser has received Gibraltar papers from the 1st to the 9th ult. The last advices from Lisbon stated that Portugal was perfectly tranquil in all the provinces. A number of the troops that deserted to Spain, had returned on a promise of pardon. A number of officers who were deprived of their commissions at the time of the restoration of Absolute Power in 1823, have petitioned to be reinstated.

Book-Binder's Tools.
AT the public sale of the tools belonging to the Book-Binder who left this place a few years since, a number of individuals are believed to have purchased articles, who may yet have them in possession, and to whom they can be of little or no value. A book binder, it is expected, will soon establish his business in this town; and should any of the old tools belonging to that business be owned by persons in the town, or vicinity, a good opportunity is now offered to dispose of them, at something like their value. Inquire at the Printing Office.

Ten Dollars Reward.
RAN away from Henry Cress, and Henry Probst, living in Cabarrus county, on the 5th of June last, a Negro man by the name of JOE, aged about 30 years, common sized, very black, a flat nose, two or three of his front upper teeth gone, with small eyes a good deal sunk in his head. Also, a negro woman, by the name of JANNAT, wife of Joe; she is quite small, about 23 years old, of a yellow complexion, hollow small feet, very active, smokes and chews tobacco. Any person who will take up said negroes, and confine them in any jail, and inform us, or Mr. Noah Partee, Postmaster, China Grove, Rowan county, N. C. so that they can be got again, shall receive $10 reward, and all reasonable charges and expenses paid.

Judge Murphey's Lottery.
IN consequence of the failure of several persons in whose hands Tickets had been placed for sale, to make returns to the Commissioner, of the Tickets which they had sold, the drawing of this Lottery did not commence at the time appointed; though it appeared probable, from the returns made, that a sufficient number had been sold to justify a commencement of the drawing. All persons having tickets for sale in this Lottery, are requested to continue the sale of them until the 15th of November next, and then report to the commissioner, Dr. James H. Cobb, at Hillsboro, how many Tickets remain unsold, and their numbers.
The drawing will commence on the 4th Monday in November next; and it is hoped that a sufficient number of Tickets will be sold by that time, to justify the Commissioner in continuing the drawing from day to day, until it can be completed.
September 24th, 1826.

TICKETS in the above Lottery are for sale at the Office of the Western Carolinian, Salisbury, $5 each. The scheme (which will be found on the first page of our paper) is a very good one, and holds out as great a chance to adventurers for obtaining Prizes, as that of any lottery now before the public. The prospect of direct personal gain, is the first and greatest inducement with all who purchase lottery tickets; but there are others, and scarcely less powerful inducements, for citizens of North-Carolina to purchase tickets in this lottery: every cent that is expended in this way, indirectly benefits all the people in the state, by contributing towards the publication of a correct "History of North-Carolina;" and will also minister to the relief of one of the most esteemed and useful citizens of the state.

COURT of Equity, Oct. term, 1826: Jesse Kerby, Executor of Samuel Kerby, decd., and John Houser, vs. Isaac Conrad, Samuel Stewart, Reuben Stewart, and David Stewart; Original bill. It appearing to the satisfaction of the court, that David Stewart, one of the defendants in this case, does not reside within the limits of this state, it is therefore ordered, that publication be made in the Western Carolinian, printed at Salisbury, for six weeks, that unless the said David Stewart appears at the next Court of Equity to be holden for Stokes county, at the Court-House in Germantown, on the third Monday after the fourth Monday in March next, and plead, answer or demur to the said bill, the same will be taken pro confesso against them at that term, and the case set down for hearing ex parte. The Muse.

FOR THE WESTERN CAROLINIAN.
TO ALL MEN IN ALL CLIMES.

Room over the mountains
Sail on the wide sea;
Go drink at the fountain
Of Freedom—be free!
Maintain in your manhood,
Retain in decline,
Your birth-rights as Man should;
Be never supine.
But sailing the ocean,
Traversing the shore,
With purest devotion
Dame Freedom adore;
Whether Moslem or Catholic,
Gentile or Jew,
At Liberty's Altar
Forever be true!

Submit to no tyrant,
Succumb to no King;
Put down the aspirant,
Cut off Treason's sting;
Repel the aggressor,
Be true to your friend;
Destroy the oppressor,
The feeble defend.
Reflect on the Roman
And masculine Greek;
The former is no man,
The latter is weak;
You may be a giant,
A giant may fall;
If reckless—complacent,
A dwarf might enthrall.

Be cautious in council,
Be brave in the field;
Give power to no unskull
Or scoundrel, to wield;
And your days in the land
May long be, and best;
And freedom will flourish
When you sink to rest.

Republics are giants, when govern'd aright
By rules of energy, principle, light;
Devoid of such guides,
They are pygmies of pride,
Whom faction divides,
And monarchists deride.

All factions are velleum,—all Freedom upstart,
When minds intellectual do grovel,—not soar.
Sound culture must polish,
Strong sympathy rule
The state that would flourish
In Liberty's school. BRUTUS.

FROM THE BOSTON SPECTATOR.

THE LUNATIC BOY.

Will group the lead thunder, with lightning I'll play,
I'll read earth's annals, and kick it away;
The rainbow I'll straddle, and I'll ride to the moon;
Over the ocean I'll paddle in boat of a spoon.
With the streamers in lightness I'll dance on the clouds,
The galaxy's brightness with colours I'll shroud;
The sun I'll smother with night-mare and awe;
For sport, at each other the stars I'll throw.
I'll tie up the winds in a bundle together,
And tattle their tale with an untried feather.
I'll make the stars dance to my music, and sing;
I'll have all men a week for my foolish girl's ring.

MISCELLANEOUS

MARTYRDOM OF A MONK.

The martyrdom of a monk of the convent of the Virgin Mary, in Aracynthe, says a Zante paper, is the subject of admiration among the faithful here. This old man having been brought by the Turks before the tribunal of Rouschid Pacha, who asked him what his name was, answered, "Ambrose." "Your country?" demanded his persecutors. "The monastery of the Holy Virgin," replied the monk. "And your dwelling?" "My dwelling places," said he, "were these rocks, until they were levelled by your soldiers; and soon," lifting up a cross at the same time, "my dwelling will be in heaven." "What have you done with the sacred vessels of the church?" "I have rescued them from the defilement of your soldiers." "Where are they?" "That secret rests within myself." "Speak!" "You may put my body on the rack—God only has power over my soul." They immediately began to apply the torture—not a word, however, escaped him, but "Lord have mercy on me!" They drove sharp instruments under his finger nails, but the martyr glorified God, and prayed for his persecutors; who, enraged by his patience of suffering, impaled him, and left him to perish in view of the trenches of Missolonghi. This news was communicated by a Piedmontese deserter.

LITERARY AMBITION.

Wolf, the celebrated German scholar, recently deceased, resided at seventeen to the University of Göttingen. He brought with him the reputation of having already acquired, by private research, an extraordinary acquaintance with the works of the ancients. When he declared to Heaven his intention of devoting himself to philology, that veteran in learning attempted to discourage him by saying, "There are but three Professorships of Eloquence in all Germany," and one of those three I mean to have, replied the young aspirant; and in fact, before he was twenty-seven, he had gained his object.

The following instance is given of Wolf's literary pride and arrogance: Cicero had, in one of his works, translated a long passage out of a Greek dialogue of Plato's. Wolf translated the whole of the dialogue into Latin, in a most masterly manner, and on purpose, as he has been heard to say, that he might strive with Cicero himself for the first honors in this exercise in the Roman dialect.

A SKETCH.

FROM THE HANOVER (HARR.) JOURNAL.

We witnessed a spectacle last week, which we cannot refrain presenting to our readers. It may be the means of exciting reflection, if not effort. There came along the street a lean, dirty, haggard horse, with scarce substance enough to make a shadow. He was fastened by twine and rags and leather, to an old horse-cart, that looked as if it was blown together by the wind. In the cart was a man, apparently about 30 years old, ragged, lame and blind, attended by his son, about 14. The son alighted, took a stone quart jug from the cart, and assisted his father to get out. The father took the son's arm, and thus they passed from store to store, inquiring for Rum! On the sightless eye-balls of this premature old man—on his trembling limbs—on his tattered garments—on his cart and horse and harness—and worst of all, on the boy—the son that led him, was written Rum! He was made blind by intemperance!!!

LAUGHTER.

A witty writer says, in praise of laughter—"Laughter has even dissipated disease and preserved life by a sudden effort of nature. We are told that the great Erasmus laughed so heartily at the satire by Reuchlier and Van Hutten, that he broke an imposthume, and recovered his health." In a singular treatise on laughter, Joubert gives two similar instances. A patient being very low, the physician, who had ordered a dose of rhubarb, countermanded the medicine, which was left on the table. A monkey in the room jumping up, discovered the goblet, and having tasted, made a terrible grimace. Again putting only his tongue to it, he perceived some sweetness of the dissolved manna, while the rhubarb had sunk to the bottom. Thus emboldened, he swallowed the whole, but found it such a nauseous potion, that after many strange and fantastic grimaces, he grinded his teeth in agony, and in a violent fury threw the goblet on the floor. The whole affair was so ludicrous, that the sick man burst into repeated peals of laughter, and the recovery of cheerfulness led to health."

SAGACITY OF THE FOX.

The fox is proverbially sagacious. When he wishes to get rid of his fleas, without disturbance, he takes a lump of moss or straw in his mouth and goes backwards into the water, wading, by slow degrees, deeper and deeper; by which means, the fleas have time and can retire gradually to the dry places, at last the parts of the neck and head, which he alone keeps above water; and, to crown the work, he gathers all his enemies into the before mentioned bunch of straw, and then drops them into the water, well washed and cleaned. This project is so cunning, that mankind could not teach him better.

LANGUAGE OF THE NEW TESTAMENT.

The original language of the New Testament has been discovered; and is allowed not to be of the purest kind, but consists of what was called the common dialect, that prevailed throughout the Macedonian empire, after Alexander and his successors had amalgamated into one body a vast variety of nations, who had spoken different tongues.

REPANTEE.

As old man, who married a young second wife,
Bought frequent occasion for compare and strife;
And, perishing one evening, exclaimed to his dear,
"Ah, would my first wife were but living and here!"
The second wife answered, sarcastic and dry,
"You cannot wish that more sincerely than I!"

ROSES FROM EARLY RISING.

Bellies that rise soon and walk apace,
Steal roses from Aurora's face;
But when they yawn in bed till ten,
Aurora steals them back again.

LATE OMISSIONS.

Judge Rochester has resigned the Secretaryship of the Panama Mission, and accepts the nomination made at Herkimer, of Governor of New York.

There are 30 dollar and 10 dollar counterfeit notes of the Bank of Virginia in circulation.

A slight shock of an earthquake was felt at Savannah in Georgia, on the night of Friday, the 6th inst. about 15 minutes before 10 o'clock.

The Small pox has made its appearance in the interior of the State of New York. At Rochester and other places it is quite prevalent.

Hot Coffee.—We observe persons about the markets early in the morning, selling hot coffee and buttered rolls. A sufficient quantity of each, costs a trifle more than a dram. How much more refreshing healthy and preferable, is this cheap breakfast, than a meagre glass of "blue ruin."

A. Y. Eng.

An eminent Judge in England has lately decided, that a note given by an individual of a company, for his own personal debt, and without the knowledge of his co-partner, is not binding on such co-partner.

In a recent trial before the Middle District Assizes, in Upper Canada, the Chief Justice decided that "a man has a right to chastise his wife moderately, however ungallant such conduct might be considered."

An honest Hibernian being asked if he could play on the violin, said he did not know, for he had never tried.

In Virginia a Dr. Gunn advertises to cure nearly all diseases. Dr. Gunn has been a famous Physician ever since the invention of powder. His cures are effigial—there are no relapses.

Begging.—We overtook (says a traveler) many settlers emigrating to the West—for when a man gets a little under the weather in affairs, on he jogs to the back woods to sun himself. One man started with his whole family of two little children in a hand barrow, and finding it excited the sympathy of the people, and was profitable. He kept on this way, and collected $2200 on the pilgrimage, with which he bought him a plantation, and is now become an esquire.

The Newark (N. J.) Eagle states that a gentleman of that town, has gathered 70 bushels of apples from one tree this season.

Two brothers, paper makers, at Turin, have discovered a mode of manufacturing good paper from the bark of poplar, willows, and other kinds of wood.

The Saratoga Sentinel mentions a valuable improvement in the construction of a threshing machine. It is said to be simple and economical, the whole expense not exceeding $30. Water or horse power can be applied; and a man and a horse may thresh from 80 to 100 bushels per day. The patentee is Col James Hyde.

The publishers of the newspapers in Charleston S. C. imitating the example of the Baltimoreans, have come to a determination, no longer to publish, gratuitously, advertisements relating to the public charitable or political institutions of the State.

There is but one test of friendship; a test by which no one would try the genuineness of it:—and this is necessity; and yet, without that, it is not easy to know whether the professions of our friends flow from the heart, or only stream from the lips.

Marriage secrets should never be revealed, for wives and husbands, by divulging them, only proclaim their folly and imprudence. The wise, among the wedded, keep their pleasures and their pains within their own bosoms.

JUDICIAL SEVEPT.

A writer in the Yeoman's Gazette, Mass. says a young man was sentenced by the Supreme Court of that state, to five years' imprisonment, for bathing publicly in some river near or at Concord. The act is certainly an offensive one, and merits punishment, but not "five years' imprisonment."

Blue Laws.—The following are among the early Blue Laws of Connecticut:—"No one shall run of a Sabbath day, or walk in his garden or elsewhere, except reverently to and from church; no one shall travel, cook victuals, make beds, sweep houses, cut hair, or shave on the Sabbath day; no woman shall kiss her child on Sabbath or fasting days; no one shall read common prayer, keep Christians or Saint's day, make minced pies, dance, play cards, or play any instrument of music, except the drum, the trumpet, and the Jews' harp; no one shall court a maid without first obtaining the consent of her parents—$1. penalty for the first offence, 10¢ for the second, and for the third imprisonment during the pleasure of the court. Every male shall have his hair cut round according to a cap.

NOTICE.

As the subscriber intends to commence the Tanning Business immediately, he therefore takes this method of informing those who are indebted to him, that a part of their dues at least must be paid by the next January court; if not, he will have to commence suit against all delinquents. And further, all who owe notes to the amount of $100 and upwards, are now informed, if they fail to attend to this notice by the 1st day of January next, either by not paying a part, or failing to place cotton to some amount in hand, that suit will be brought, and writs made returnable to the aforesaid court, (without respect to persons.) Green or dry Hides will be received in payment of debts; Goods or cash paid for them, to any amount, at my Store in Concord, Cabarrus county, at the usual prices. PAUL BARRINGER.

Valuable House and Lots IN HUNTSVILLE.

FOR sale at public vendue, on Thursday, the 16th of November next, on the premises, a very valuable two story large Dwelling House, in the town of Huntsville, Surry county, N. C. with all necessary out buildings; a well of water close by the house, as good as any in that section of the state; and all other conveniences necessary for a House of Entertainment, or Private Dwelling. Also, six valuable Town Lots, all on one square, will be sold on the same day. Owing to the pressure of the times, it is expected a great bargain may be had in the premises. A credit of six, twelve, and eighteen months, will be given for the purchase money. Also, on the same day, will be sold at public sale, in the town of Huntsville, a new Wagon and four Horses, and a likely Negro Woman and Child. For this property, one-third of the purchase money will be required to be paid down; the balance on a credit of nine months. All persons disposed to purchase any of the above property, are invited to attend. WILLIAM P. STOCKTON.

Trust Sale.

BY virtue of a deed of trust, executed to me by the late Neill McKay, sen. dec'd. on the 1st day of March, 1826, to secure the payment of certain sums of money to William King and Theophilus Falls, I will proceed to sell, on the premises, to the highest bidder, on Friday, the 17th day of November next, a tract of LAND joining the lands of William King, Alexander McKay, and others, lying on Withers' Creek, formerly owned by said McKay. This land, as is well known, is little inferior to any in the lower end of Irredell county. There are two dwelling houses and other convenient buildings thereon: about six or seven hundred dollars of the purchase money, will probably be required on the day of sale. ABRAHAM K. Stolen

FROM the subscriber, on the 6th inst. out of the stable of James Gillaspie, in the upper end of Mecklenburg county, a likely sorrel HORSE about eight years old, a powerful made horse, fifteen hands high, shod all round. From some recent occurrences, that have taken place, I have reason to believe said horse is in the possession of a man by the name of Willis Miller, who has since disappeared. Ten Dollars reward will be given for said horse and Miller, and all reasonable expenses paid by ROBERT POTTS.
